Data processors

A data processor is an enterprise that processes personal data on behalf of Differ and in accordance with our instructions. We have data processors that assist us with, for instance:

- Support with tools for recruitment (Team tailor)
- Support with tools for evaluation and testing of candidates (Alva Lab)
- Support for sending and administering invitations to seminars, events and courses (Confetti, Mailchimp, Simplify, Wix)

When your personal data is shared with our data processors, this is done only for purposes in line with the purposes for which we collect the information (e.g., to fulfill our commitments in accordance with contracts concluded, or to handle candidates in a recruitment process).

We have written contracts with all data processors, through which they guarantee security for the data processed and commit to observing our security requirements and delimitations and requirements regarding international transfer of personal data.

We may also be obliged to share your personal data with authorities with the role of independent data controllers. If an authority is an independent data controller, this means that Differ cannot govern how the information provided to the authority is processed.

When your personal data are shared with an authority which is an independent data controller, the privacy policy and data processing of this authority will apply.

Your rights

Right of access (so-called register extract): We are always open and transparent regarding how we process personal data and if you want greater insight into which personal data we process, you can request access to this data. To ensure efficient handling of your request and that the information is being provided to the right person, we may need to request further information about you.

Right of rectification: You can request rectification of your personal data if the data are inaccurate. Within the context of the purpose stated, you also have the right to provide additional information if your personal data is incomplete.

Right of erasure: You can request an erasure of personal data that relates to you if the personal data no longer is needed for the purpose for which they were collected or processed or you object to the balancing of interests that we have performed based on a legitimate interest and your reasons for objection outweigh our legitimate interest. Although we may have the right to reject your request if there are legal obligations preventing us from immediately erasing certain personal data. These obligations may come from legislation on discrimination or bookkeeping. It may also be the case that the processing is necessary for our establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims. If we are prevented from acting on a request for an erasure, we will instead block the personal data from use for other purposes than the purpose that prevents the requested erasure.

Data portability: In cases where our processing of personal data is based on your consent or the fulfillment of a contract, you have the right to request that the information that concerns you and that you have provided us with is transferred to another data controller. However, this is provided that the transfer is technically possible and that it can be performed in an automated manner.

Complaints

The Swedish Authority for Privacy Protection (IMY) is the authority responsible for monitoring the application of the legislation. If you believe that Differ is processing your personal data in an incorrect manner you can contact us at info@differ.se before presenting a complaint to IMY.

Use of cookies

Differ uses cookies to analyze traffic on our website. The information is also shared with third parties, so that we can offer you tailored contents. If you do not want this, you can choose to check “Decline all”. By clicking on “Accept all” you are consenting to all purposes.
